THE TRUE STORY OF THE 3 LITTLE PIGS!

EDUCATOR STUDY GUIDE
THE TRUE STORY OF THE 3 LITTLE PIGS!

Adapted from the book The True Story of the Three Little Pigs by Jon Scieszka and Lane Smith
Copyright ©1989 by Jon Scieszka and Lane Smith
Adapted by Robert Kauzlaric • Music by Paul Gilvary & William Rush • Directed by Amanda Link

TABLE OF CONTENTS

4  Introduction to the Student Matinee Program
   How to Prepare for your Field Trip
   Traditional Plays vs. Literary Adaptations
   Jobs in the Theatre

6  Synopsis of the Play

7–10 Activity Pages
   If You Could Make Your Own Pig’s House: An art and design activity
   Parts of a Newspaper: a lesson in journalism
   How Many Stories Can We Tell: a creative writing exercise
   All About Interviews: learning from asking questions

11  Further Classroom Adventures: Drama Games relating to True Story…

12  Student Review Sheet
Introduction to Lifeline’s Student Matinee Program

Lifeline Theatre’s award-winning adaptations of children’s literature inspire a love of reading that will give flight to students’ imaginations and stay with them throughout their lives. Every year, Lifeline Theatre’s KidSeries Student Matinee Program serves over 3,000 students, 35 schools, 120 classrooms, and 185 teachers with school-day performances of our season productions. Prior to every show, teachers receive a comprehensive Study Guide like this one, complete with play synopses, pull-out activity pages that relate the play to other school subjects, and student/teacher reviews to send back to the cast. Following every school matinee, our cast engages the student audiences in post-performance Talk Backs. The actors ask and answer questions, encouraging deeper analysis of the play.

We are committed to bringing children’s literature to the stage to entertain, educate and empower both kids and adults. Our goal is to help students develop greater appreciation of literature and theatre as art forms, to excite kids about reading, as well as to teach them about various subjects within each individual show.

The enclosed educational activity sheets are beneficial to deepening your field trip to a Lifeline Theatre show. We encourage you to use this study guide to enrich your students’ experience and to enhance the educational value of the performance you attend. Please let us know what parts are helpful to you and where you would like additional materials.

HOW TO PREPARE FOR YOUR FIELD TRIP

Before the Play: Discuss Appropriate Behavior
Have a discussion with your students about proper theatre etiquette. For example, it’s okay to clap and laugh, but it’s not okay to talk to your neighbor. Have students compare and contrast the difference between watching a movie and watching a play. Ask if students have been to a play before. If so, what play? What was the experience like? What do they think this particular experience will be like? What do they expect: a big theatre or a small one, many seats or only a few, young actors or older ones, etc.

After the Play: Reflect on the Experience
Ask students if they enjoyed the play. Based on this experience, would they like to see other plays? If they’ve seen plays before, how did this play compare? What happened that they were expecting to happen? What happened that they weren’t expecting? How was seeing a play a different experience than seeing a movie?
Have the students write a review of the play. Use the attached form or have them write a paragraph or two on their own. Encourage the students to be specific about why they enjoyed a certain part of the play. If they liked a scene because it was funny, have them explain why it was funny to them, what the characters did or said that was funny, etc. Have the students draw a picture or make a collage of their favorite scene or character. Have them show their picture to the class and explain why that scene or character was their favorite. We invite you to send the reviews and pictures to Lifeline – we enjoy reading them and learn from student feedback.

TRADITIONAL PLAYS VS LITERARY ADAPTATIONS

Lifeline Theatre’s KidSeries productions are often musical adaptations of picture books and short stories for children. We encourage you to discuss the elements of each version and compare/contrast the two both before and after you see the play.

Before the Play: Get to Know the Original Story
Read the story to your students, or have them read the book themselves, before the production. After reading the book, discuss it with your students, using these questions as launch pads:

- Who are the characters in the story?
- What happens in the beginning of the story? The middle? The end?
- What is your favorite part of the story? Why?
- Who is your favorite character? Why?
- Is there a character in the story you don’t like? What makes you dislike this character?
- What do you think you will see on stage as the actors tell this story?
- How might the play be different from the story? How might it be the same?

Beginning, Middle and End
To encourage sequential thinking, have students act out the beginning, middle and end of the story. Split the students into three groups (or more, depending on the number of students in your class) and have one group enact the beginning, have the next group enact the middle, and the final group the end. Have the students watching the performances help the group to remember any parts they may have left out. Give the groups the chance to redo their performances, including any elements suggested by their classmates.

After the Play: Compare/Contrast the Story to the Play

- How were the book and the play different?
- How were the book and the play the same?
- What elements of the play surprised you, based on your knowledge of the book?
- Which did you enjoy more, reading the book or watching the play?
- What was your favorite part of the play? Was that your favorite part of the book too?
- Were there any characters in the book that were not in the play, or vice versa?
- Some parts of the play are different from the book. Why do you think the playwright added or subtracted certain parts?
JOBS IN THE THEATRE: BEHIND THE SCENES

Before the Play: Prepare Your Students to Observe All the Roles
When we create a play at Lifeline, we have a community of artists working together to make a complete production. Ask students to be particularly observant during the performance for the parts of the show that are done by the various people listed below:

- Playwright/Adaptor/Author – writes the play
- Composer – writes the music for the show
- Lyricist – writes the words (or “lyrics”) for the songs in the play
- Director – directs the play: makes decisions about costumes, lights, sets, etc.
- Choreographer – creates and teaches the actors the dances in the show
- Lighting Designer – designs and hangs the lights for the show; designs lighting changes
- Set Designer – designs and builds the scenery and props for the show
- Sound Designer – designs and records the sound effects for the show
- Costume Designer – designs and makes the costumes for the show
- Stage Manager – runs the sound and lights during the performance
- Actors – perform the play

After the Play: Discuss the Students’ Observations
Ask the students about what they noticed about the “behind-the-scenes” jobs:

- How did the costume designer make the actors look like the characters they were playing?
- What about their costumes helped you to know what kind of people or animals they were?
- Did you have a favorite costume in the show? Which one? Why was it your favorite?
- If there were animal costumes, how did the costume designer create them so that they would look more like animals than people?
- What are some of the locations the play took place in?
- How did the set designer make the settings look realistic?
- What sound effects did you hear in the play? How did those sound effects help you to know what was happening in the play?
- Why do you think the composer chose the styles of music he did? What sorts of music would not make sense with the story?

KIDSERIES SEASON 2014-15 SUPPORT
Lifeline Theatre’s programs are partially supported by Alphawood Foundation; The Arts Work Fund; Elizabeth F. Cheney Foundation; CityArts grant from the City of Chicago Department of Cultural Affairs and Special Events; The Common Cup; Gaylord and Dorothy Donnelley Foundation; FGMK LLC; Flex Print, Inc.; Lloyd A. Fry Foundation; The Grover Hermann Foundation; Illinois Arts Council, a state agency; MacArthur Fund for Arts and Culture at Prince; Netrix LLC; The Polk Bros. Foundation; The Shubert Foundation; and the annual support of businesses and individuals.
SYNOPSIS OF THE PLAY

The play takes place at the courthouse in the town of Piggsylvania. As the lights come up, we meet tough-talking independent reporter on the streets, Lillian Magill, who seeks justice and TRUTH within in criminal system. Reporter Magill introduces us to the case she is about to witness, the great trial of the Big Bad Wolf and the crimes he has committed against the Three Little Pigs. Everyone in town is convinced that the wolf, also known as Alexander T. Wolf, is guilty… but she has a different feeling about it and is convinced that he has his own fair side of the story to tell. As she takes a seat to observe the trial, she tells the audience that THEY will be the jury for the case- meaning the audience will actually get to decide whether the wolf is guilty or innocent at the end of the trial/play….

The judge, The Honorable Prudence, enters the courtroom, and everyone rises. We quickly learn that Prudence is definitely biased on the side of the pigs. Julia is the lawyer for the side of the pigs, and she presents her opening statement in the form of a lively and persuasive song. She tells the story from the pigs’ point of view—it is the story that most of us know, where the wolf huffs and puffs and blows in the house of straw (then eats that pig) followed by the house of sticks (then eats that pig) and finally tries to blow down the brick house to no avail… which is when the police arrive and arrest the wolf. At the end of her song telling this side of the story, A.T. Wolf wants to begin to explain his side of the story, starting with why he ATE the pigs. He sings a song supporting his point of view as a wolf, who just naturally eats pigs!

His song is unconvincing so far, and the prosecution calls to the stand a Dr. Robert Shears (Bobby) to make a case about the viciousness of wolves. His testimony is cut short by an emergency surgery he is called in to perform at the hospital, and they call the next witness to the stand, Martha-- a pig neighbor of Maxwell, the brick house pig, and witness to the final huff-and-puff attempt. She claims that from her vantage point, she saw his viciousness first hand. She claims that the wolf came wearing a chef’s apron, wielding a knife and fork, yelling ““Let me in, let me in! I wanna eat you… all covered in sugar,” or something like that…. She was the one who called the police at that point. She sings a song claiming that A. T. Wolf is indeed the wolf she saw that day, and should be locked up. Following this, Julia calls her last witness to the stand, the third pig himself, Maxwell. He tells the story from his point of view, and talks about how the wolf asked/demanded to come in, that his eyes were leaky and looking “deranged”, and that there was something gooey in his beard. He just looked awful. And angry.

Wolf jumps in at this point and asks to please be able to present his side of the story. He doesn’t have legal representation, but wants the proper questioning, so he pulls reporter Magill to question him. And he presents this story: On the day of the incident, Wolf had a horrible, terrible cold. Hence, the watery eyes and gooey beard. But he was trying to feel better, so he decided to bake a cake. As he was putting ingredients together, he realized he was missing one cup of sugar, so he went to the pig’s house down the road (whose house was made of straw). The knife and fork that Martha thought she saw was simply a whisk and measuring cup. As he arrived at the house and knocked on the door asking to come in (for a cup of sugar), he sneezed! And that sneeze blew down the straw house, killing the pig! What could the wolf do? He ate the pig. Next, he went to house of sticks to ask that pig for a cup of sugar, and… the same thing happened! Now two houses were down, two pigs were dead, and both eaten by the wolf. At the third house is when he got “caught”. His case is closed.

So, what is the verdict? Is the wolf innocent or guilty? Here, the audience gets to vote and decide, and depending on the majority, that is how the play ends. 😊
IF IT WAS YOUR HOUSE

In the story of the Three Little Pigs, there is a house of straw, a house of sticks, and a house of bricks. How would you make YOUR house if you were one of the pigs? Get creative with this art activity and make your house unique and special.
Parts of a Newspaper

In The True Story of the Three Little Pigs, we learn that two different newspapers told different versions of the story of what happened between the pigs and the Big Bad Wolf. In newspapers, there are many different sections that each cover different topics. Use this matching activity below to test how well you can guess which section might cover which stories. Draw a line from one side to the other.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>NEWSPAPER SECTION</th>
<th>TITLE OF STORY</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>WORLD</td>
<td>Chicago Cubs Score Three Home Runs In The 11th Inning!</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>NATION</td>
<td>“New Cars Are Safer than Old Cars, Experts Say”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>HOME AND GARDEN</td>
<td>“President Obama Visit Schools Across the Country”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>TRANSPORTATION</td>
<td>“10 Tips For How To Grow The Perfect Tomatoes”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>SPORTS</td>
<td>“HOUSE FOR RENT! Great condition. Call 555-3496.”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ARTS AND ENTERTAINMENT</td>
<td>“Heavy Rains and Floods Destroy the Coast of France”</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>CLASSIFIEDS</td>
<td>“Hollywood Movie Stars and Their Fabulous Shoes”</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
WE CAN TELL MANY STORIES
ALL STARTING FROM THE SAME HEADLINE

In the True Story of the Three Little Pigs, we learn that there are many different SIDES to a story, and that what one person thinks happened can be very different than what another person thinks happened. Let’s see if we can explore that further with this creative writing exercise. Below are three made-up possible story titles or “headlines”. Use one or make up your own. Working in groups, each group should choose one headline and break into two smaller groups. Each smaller group can use the “five line story” form below to write their own version of how that headline came to be.

Possible Made-Up Headlines:

“WHY EVERYONE AROUND ME LIKES TO SMILE”

“WHY ORANGE IS HIS FAVORITE COLOR”

“WHY SHE IS ALWAYS SINGING IN THE MORNING”

Once there was…

And every day…

Until one day…

Because of this…

And that is why…
ALL ABOUT INTERVIEWS!

In The True Story of the Three Little Pigs, the lawyers interview the witnesses on the stand to learn more about them and their point of view on things. Interviewing your friends in class can be a good way to learn more about them and share what you know with each other.

Using this question sheet below, break up into pairs and interview each other. Write down your answers. When you are done, the whole class can present what they have leaned.

What is your full name? ________________________________________

Were you named after anyone in your family, or does your name have a special meaning? ________________________________________

What is your favorite hobby or activity to do in your free time? ________________________________________

What subject in school do you like the best? ________________________________________

What do you like better: winter or summer? ________________________________________

What do you like better: pie or cake? ________________________________________

What do you like better: cats or dogs? ________________________________________

If you could have a magical power, what would it be? ________________________________________

What do you want to be when you grow up? ________________________________________

Anything else you want to share about yourself? ________________________________________

__________________________________________
Once back in the classroom, we encourage you to maximize your students’ experience at Lifeline by using drama to teach drama! In our residency program, we use theatre games to not only teach the basics of performance, but also to explore themes in the student matinees. Below are some games you can play with your class that touch upon some of the concepts conveyed in the story.

Mime Telephone (for how the “truth” can change)

Number of Players: Small Groups
Objectives: Physicality, Focus, Pantomime

How to Play: Get a series of volunteers—5 or 6, or more with an older class—while the rest of the class is audience. The students line up upstage to downstage, all facing downstage and the teacher or leader at the back (upstage end) of the line. The leader taps the next person in line on the shoulder; the student turns to face the teacher. The leader mimes an object and mimes using the object; for example, if the object is a sandwich, she might mime spreading peanut butter onto bread, putting the slices of bread together, and taking a bite. Then she hands the object to that next person up the line. That person takes the object, then turns and taps the next person on the shoulder, and must repeat exactly what he or she thinks was mimed to them. The “object” continues down the line. When it reaches the final person the farthest downstage, he or she must take the object and say, “This is a ...” and say whatever they believe or guess the object is.

Kitty Wants A Corner (for the action of moving between houses)

Number of Players: Full Group
Objectives: Focus, Energy, Ensemble

How to Play: Kitty is selected and comes to the center of the circle. He or she begins telling people individually on the circle, “Kitty wants a corner.” The person being asked replies, “Sorry, try my neighbor.” While this is happening, other people are trying to switch places in the circle without losing their spot to Kitty. They have to make eye contact and get non-verbal agreement to make the switch successfully. If they lose their spot, they then become the new Kitty. These steps repeat. This game is all about using your senses to catch someone sneaking across the circle, and communicating non-verbally.

Character Interview (for the witness stand)

Number of Players: Solo, with Group
Objectives: Improvisation, Character, Listening

How to Play: Focusing on a specific character from a story, ask a volunteer to come up and “be” that character for a Q&A with the class. The student is asked to consider not only the physicality of their character, but also the words and feelings he or she might use in such a setting. The class speaks to this actor as the character and asks them questions about their life and experiences.
Student Review of The True Story of the Three Little Pigs

By: ____________________________

I give this play a (circle the number of stars): ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

My favorite part of the play was ________________________________

________________________________________________________________________

because ____________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________.

My favorite character was ________________________________ because ____________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________.

If I had choose what I liked best, I would choose (circle one)

- the story
- the characters
- the songs
- the costumes
- the scenery

because ____________________________________________________________________

________________________________________________________________________.

________________________________________________________________________.